

The Summer that was... (2016)

So, Autumn is officially here.

The leaves are starting to change colour and fall (yay for crunchy leaf walks, nay for loads of leaves rotting in my garden that I need to pick up and really can't be arsed with).

As a little memento of our summer, I have compiled some of our photos into a slideshow to look back on.

You don't have to bore yourself rigid watching it (it's like when you're being made to look at someone else's holidays photos and you have to pretend to be really interested when, in actual fact, you're wishing for a power cut to make it stop and would rather have a gynecological exam than look at anymore bloody photos...) I just wanted to have a keepsake on my blog to look back on when I am old and wishing I had a toddler who still crapped on my carpet at home. What am I saying, that'll never happen but you know what I mean. I moan about them (lots) but I do love them, I don't always like them, but I always love them.

So here's my Summer 2016 Montage...

It's only 10 hours long.

Sorry.

Not sorry.

□

Gems.x

1. IMG_3718