

“My germs!”

I walked in on one of my boys in the bathroom this morning by accident.

He had just finished using the toilet and I knew full well he hadn't washed his hands yet but was still wiping his hands on MY towel.

“Why are you wiping your hands yet if you haven't washed them...”

Silence.

Nervous staring by child at the floor, Windows and other potential escape routes.

“Well...” I ask again.

” You didn't get wee on them and then wipe it on my towel?”

A smirk appears across his face.

More nervous glancing for escape routes.

Bingo. I needn't ask anymore.

Good job I caught him and didn't wipe my mouth on it after if brushed my teeth then...

Boys.
